

Food Allergy

As you are aware the NHS is currently under immense pressure due to the current COVID 19 pandemic. During this period we are not able to provide our usual service as we need to prioritise and reduce the risk to our patients. In view of this, we have uploaded our Cow's milk allergy group talks that we would normally invite you to attend. These talks are for infants who have been diagnosed with cow's milk protein allergy and are having delayed reactions. A dietitian will also discuss specific advice for your child over the telephone. You can download the presentation from the self-help tab.

If your child has other food allergies you may find the below websites helpful in the meantime until your dietetic appointment
